In which to meet, Mr. Philpott kindly offered his services as Instructor free, for which the Council thanked him.

Monetary Systems.

Individuals the world over have always discussed money. They have always been interested in money. But the vast majority of people in years gone by never bothered their heads very much about monetary systems, and how they worked. They knew that their country was on a "gold standard," but they did not trouble to find out and understand just what that meant. They knew that Governments and banks issued paper bills and that these bills were good. They knew that one and all were concerned about the service these bills could get in return for the products or the services they had to sell, and how these same bills would be to bring the goods or services they found it necessary to buy. Of the system behind the backs of these paper bills the average person knew little and cared less.

Today that indifference has disappeared like so many other things in this rapidly changing world. People are still interested in money, how to get, how to spend it, and how to purchase for it. They want to know all about the system back of issues, circulation, and exchange of money. The people of the world have been awakened with a jolt to a realization that the monetary system is not working as it should work in the interest and welfare of mankind, and we hear the opinion expressed on every hand that money has become the master and not the servant of mankind; that instead of facilitating convenience in order to expedite the exchange of the world's commodities and services, it has itself become a commodity; and that being the case, the people want to know who controls the production of that commodity—money.

As a result of this aroused interest, everybody in everything talking about monetary systems. People are debating the subject whether they understand it or not. The author of theories, opinions, suggestions advanced are legion; they far outnumbered all the monetary and banking systems of the world. Much of what is said is and is even being soberly advanced as a panacea for the world's ills, is based in the most profound ignorance. The "cure" being offered would prove far worse than the disease they would seek to overcome.

Out of the confusion of ideas and suggestions and so-called solutions, one thing emerges. It is this: That no nation can of itself remove the cause of its financial entanglement, or cure the malady from which it is suffering. There may be persons who firmly believe that their set theory will work where all others have failed; that a nation can, of itself, remedy its own ills; and that even a subordinate state or province within a nation can do the same. Let us hope to do so to take a walk on the safe side.

Frankly, I am not in a position to take a walk on the safe side. I do not take the opinion of the batches in inaction, nor the theory of the radicals on the other hand, but rather to weigh with the opinions and advice of impartial students of world economics, men trained and having experience in the weighing of causes and effects, men who have no axe to grind, and who desire that solutions be reached based on solid facts and economic truth.

There are such movements in most countries, and outstanding in this group is the movement of the German Central Bank of Sweden. France is an original, not merely an exponent of a great deal of new thinking, but it is not sufficient. The only persons who firmly believe that their set theory will work where all others have failed; that a nation can, of itself, remedy its own ills; and that even a subordinate state or province within a nation can do the same. Let us hope to do so to take a walk on the safe side.

One Canadian reviewer of this book says that Professor Cassel, missed no words in these lectures. There are none of the cautious phrases and complicated qualifications to which one is accustomed in the writings of economists. He speaks as one having authority and evidently considers his subject more important than the winds of controversy. Professor Cassel also shows that gold is not the only way to manage money, and its automatic regulation of the value of money has given place to bank policy as a means of regulation. "For a true understanding of the monetary system," says Professor Cassel, "it is of fundamental importance that we should make ourselves familiar with the fact that a national currency need not always be the result of a central bank, and that a bank need not be a government bank. In this connection, he goes on to show that the value of gold itself is then determined by the monetary policy of the leading gold country, and he lays the blame for the great fall in world prices upon the monetary restriction policies of France and the United States.

Professor Cassel pokes fun at the apoplectic old gentlemen who will not enter into the notion of a managed money, and who say that "we have no money." In making it absolutely clear that we already have a managed money, if fact he attributes a great deal of our grief to the fact that not only is our money managed, but that it has been very badly managed. After pointing out the amount of intelligent co-operation that is needed to make even a reformed gold standard work, he concludes that gold must, in the circumstances, be regarded as singularly unsuitable for use as a standard of value.

Professor Cassel complains of the loose and unintelligent use of the word inflation, which does not mean what the plaus think it means. An expansion of the legal basis for money does not necessarily involve inflation. Anyhow, he thinks that some inflation would be a good thing. "The best thing that the gold standard and its allies could do is to let inflation be immediate, to let it be general, so that the public would be immediately and without difficulty of their own comprehension, it is no crank who proclaims this, but one of the world's leading authorities, a mature man, and one whose influence has been established and proven."

His views, as set forth in these lectures, may well receive the close study and consideration of all who are monetary experts, currency reformers and re-organizers of our banking system. They may find comfort and support in some of his views, and others may find them wholly unsound. Those who are now advancing and which this world authority expresses as utterly unsound, and which, if put into practice, would bring disastrous results.

Thefts of church poor boxes in London are more numerous than ever.

Canadian Theatres Safe
 Have Highest Rating In Respect To Fire Risk

Reports from Ottawa show that the theatres in Canada now have the highest rating in respect to fire risk among all the provinces. This fact was brought out in the report just issued by J. Grove Smith, Dominion Fire Commissioner.

The report further shows that there were only 19 fires in theatres in the last year and not one of them of a serious nature. The total fire loss was only $4,000.

The report gives high credit to the type of men engaged in the business of managing theatres in the Dominion. It states that managers in the world do the same things to safeguard their patrons as in Canada and particularly in Ontario. When one stops to think that over 3,000,000,000 feet of film was shown in the close on a thousand theatres in Canada last year this small fire loss is remarkable.

HAD RHEUMATISM
 FOR 20 YEARS

But None Since 1930

This man must have something like a record for suffering. He says: "Since I was born in 1880, I have had 20 years of great suffering with rheumatism. I am pleased to say that I have got rid of it completely, free from that dreadful pain, simply by taking Kruschen Salts—and nothing else. I am up and about again, and have a long time to have that awful rheumatic pain about once." — W. P.

He is a man of 50, and looks like him and everyone else. It is caused by sharp-edged uric acid crystals getting into the joints. These crystals will dissolve themselves gradually. Furthermore, if you keep up the little water he gave me, it will help him to provide for them to come again. Rheumatism will be gone for good.

French Premier Pays Homage To German War Dead

President Edouard Herriot, of France, paid tribute to the German war dead in an address dedicating a new municipal hall.

"Here in Lems," Herriot said, "stems 75,000 German war dead who have been buried here and ask only to live in tranquility. Let us confer with them the homage that we have conferred on our own dead. France has not hated, for her former enemies. What our country wants is a plan for pacific organization which will bring from everyone, a renunciation of arms."

Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish. It came along to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it was adopted by a large number of physicians in the field, and it is now known and prized throughout this continent. There is nothing equal to it.

Debt Cancellation

United States Would Profit If They Would Agree To It

Senator Borah estimates that the United States $30,000,000,000 (about $150,000,000,000). Such calculations are necessarily conjectural, but the long term effect of the world's financial machinery is thrown hopelessly out of gear by debt transfer to transfer huge payments of war debts. This is at bottom the justification of the seeming paradox that it will probably pay the United States to cancel her war debts.—London Daily Telegraph.

The Bright Side

You can always find some reason for rejoicing in the present state of the world. For instance, we are as glad as gaudy can be that we are not the official office boy who had to announce that Premier Cheng Hsiao-Hsu of Manchuria was in conference with Foreign Minister Hsieh Chih-Tsui.

Extension Service Educational Work Carried On By University Of Alberta

One of the principal auxiliaries used by the Department of Extension, University of Alberta, in its educational work outside the class room is its radio broadcasting station, CKUA, which has a frequency of 580 kilocycles, a wave length of 517.2 meters and power of 500 watts. The programs to be given for the last two months of the year indicate that those who have been interested in agriculture are evidently as skilful and first-class chef is preparing menus for a series of meals for a restaurant or hotel. The daily broadcast on week days begins at 1:15 p.m. and the last item on the programme goes on the air at 4:30 p.m. and ends at 5:00 p.m. The station is open only for one hour when a programme of music is given from 4 to 5 p.m. The daily introductory broadcast is known as the "Farm Broadcast" and deals with some topic of particular interest to farmers such as "Fall Culture for Weed Control"; "The Alberta Livestock Producers' Interest in the Ottawa Economic Conference"; "The Contribution of Scientific Research to Agriculture"; "Rural Folk Lore," etc. The Forum

Broadcast closes with "Agricultural News Flash."

Among the subjects scheduled for the next two months, in addition to periods of symphonic music and other entertaining features, are lessons in French; a series of talks listed as "Tales of the Old Timers," which will discuss the exploits of some of the rugged pioneers of Western Canada; "The Romance of Animal Life"; "Our Changing Civilization," in which the changing attitude towards crime and social progress and other topics will be discussed; "How to Live" will be discussed. Another series will deal with the modern spirit as revealed in prose-fiction, drama and biography, to be followed by talks by competent authorities on international relations and economic problems.

These are only some of the high lights on CKUA's programmes. "The Homemakers' Hour," which goes on the air at four p.m., deals with a wide range of subjects including "Caring Care of the Home"; "What's Your Marriage?" the latter to be discussed by Judge Mrs. Emily P. Murphy, of Edmonton, who, in addition to a wide range of notes, has sat on the police court bench for several years.

Mr. Charlesworth declared it would be his aim to conduct radio broadcasts in the same spirit in which a large daily newspaper is published.

The desire would be to cater to all tastes, he said.

A record on a turntable like that of a gramophone then repeated into the telephone, so that the operator could hear the exchange code word. 'Burgars' are here. Notify the police."

"Assuming the operator at the exchange answers promptly," Mr. Gosselin said, "the procedure should be on the way before the burglar can break his bearings. The burglar would not know what was happening, because the device is contained in a sound-proof cabinet. We have eliminated the noisy bell, which often only scares the thief and might also be set ringing for hours by a dog or cat."

National Broadcasting

New Radio Commission To Give Special Attention To Western Canada

Hector Charlesworth, chairman of the new Canadian Broadcasting Commission, and Thomas Maher, one of the members were in Ottawa recently to meet with the new radio commission office. The new body which will control radio broadcasting in Canada, will start to function just as soon as the work of organization has been completed.

Colin A. Steel, third member of the commission, is still in Madrid, with the Canadian delegation to the International Radio Conference, but is expected to return to Canada at the end of November.

Other authority offices have been arranged in Ottawa and a head office staff installed, the commission will undertake a tour of the Dominion to study at first hand the problems of the radio listeners.

Mr. Charlesworth said a great volume of work remains to be done before it could definitely announce the date of the first programme under the auspices of the New National organization. The aim of polyphony Canadian listeners with typical Canadian programming and ensuring that every section of the Dominion will be covered by stations of sufficient power to enable radio owners to secure twenty-four hours a day of radio reception, will be easily accomplished, the new commission believes.

The new chairman said attention would be first directed to those parts of Canada which are the most poorly served at the present time. Western Canada will undoubtedly receive the greatest attention.

Mr. Charlesworth declared it would be his aim to conduct radio broadcasts in the same spirit in which a large daily newspaper is published. The desire would be to cater to all tastes, he said.

TOO LATE

There are no other words used in medicine which tell such a sad story as the two words "too late". They are infinitely sad because they imply that there was a period of time when it would not have been too late, a time when help might have been given.

It is unfortunately true that there are many things concerning the cause, prevention and treatment of disease that we do not know. However, what is known is of greatest value—indeed it often has its only value—when used early in the course or development of disease.

It can be fairly stated that in the vast majority of cases of illness, if the disease were treated early the patient would in all likelihood be cured, or at least the condition would be improved. On the other hand it is equally true that, in most cases very little can be done for disease that is far advanced and firmly fixed in a chronic form.

Early treatment is urged, because it is the best way to secure results. Delay in securing treatment is almost sure to lead to a more prolonged and more serious, if not fatal condition.

Many cases of cancer can be cured by early treatment. The reason cancer patients hear the words "too late" is very frequently because they did not realize that a condition could be serious and still not cause pain. Pain is usually a late symptom of cancer, and the cancer patient who waits until pain occurs before consulting a doctor is, in most cases "too late".

There is no reason why this should occur. It would not occur were attention given to certain conditions which indicate the possibility of cancer. These conditions do not necessarily mean the presence of a cancerous growth, but a doctor is the only person who can ascertain what they do mean in each individual case.

Ay lump, particularly in the breast, should be investigated. Any sore which has not healed properly within a reasonable time should be regarded with suspicion. Any unusual discharge or bleeding from any part of the body, particularly in women after the menopause, should never be disregarded. Indigestion should always be looked into.

Whereas the 11th day of November is one of the most significant days in the history of the world and whereas that day has been set apart as a Day of Remembrance by Dominion Statute therefore be it resolved that we, the United Church of Canada on General Council assembled, do pledge ourselves to do all in our power to see that this day shall be sacred in our national life. We do hereby pledge ourselves to keep this day a Day of Remembrance in every truth, on which the Canadian people shall be impressed with the traditions of service, the horrors of war and as a day of education in inter-national amity and fellowship.

The above is only part of a larger statement passed by the Canadian General Council. And although there is no statement to the effect that peace be maintained at any price, yet the back ground of pacificism is easily seen.

We recall that a very few years ago ministers and prominent lawyers were with the colors. And various church courts passed resolutions supporting the hands of those who prosecuted the war. And what they would do if war broke and its cause ascertained.

It is by prompt attention to such abnormal conditions, which do not appear to be serious, which do not induce real discomfort, that power will be discovered in its early curable stage.

Early cancer is curable, but the proper means of treatment cannot be applied and a cure effected unless the patient comes to his doctor at the first suggestion of such abnormal conditions as have been mentioned.

Do so, and you will not be told that it is "too late".

power."

And again others are cheery and chattering, intriguing to the childlike mind, a condition amply demonstrated by:

"The smirking-quirking, glaring-swearing,
Hang-by-your-tail-like-me,
That biscuit-catching, peanut-snatching,
Theif-of-a-Chimpanzee!"

The story of "John and Mary and Tommy," is, in fact, a worthy addition to the library of children's verse. The sparkling little poems are attractively illustrated, with sixty drawings by that admirable artist, P. A. Steynas.

Eleanore McLaren Brown, authoress of this entertaining new work is Lady McLaren Brown, the brilliant wife of Sir George McLaren Brown, the European General Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway; and the book apart from its lively message to children everywhere, is a further feature of the patriotic and imperial work Lady McLaren Brown is continually engaged in towards the closer and kindlier relationships of Canada with the Motherland.

"I have never seen a more beautiful country or enjoyed a visit there," said Miss Phyllis Cunningham, British Sportsman-Sister to the Colonies, as she said farewell to Britain and started when leaving the Canadian Pacific Imperial Limited on her way to Calgary. She enjoyed his favoritism, the time of the trip, where he and his party took four fine fish, including a 17-pound salmon. (883)

Why Not Give the Editor a Hand

In a few days Norman G. Cary will call on every farmer in the Arrowood district, asking them for three bushels of wheat for a year's subscription to the Bow Valley Resource, and we predict that the community will give him a loyal support.

Nichols are often granted when you won't want to be bothered with tire troubles. There is a no better way to cut down your overhead than by replacing worn tires with Firestones.

With the results of the United election have no doubt caused many a politician to return to the old party, like the reply Mrs. Peck made to the canvasser who asked what party her husband belonged to she replied: "Take a good look, Mister, I'm the party.
